THE IRON ERA.

SATURDAY, Feb. 24, 1872.

LOCAL DEPARTMENT.

On account of illness we are unable to do justice to our local columns this week.

The Sussex Register notices an addition to the business interests of Dover as follows:

Mr. Lewis Adams, late of the firm of Adams & Margaria, left town on Tuesday to take charge of the dry goods department in the store of Geo. Richards & Co., at Dover. Mr. Adams has been in business in Newton during the past twelve years, and by his genial manner and honorable dealing has made a host of friends, not only in town but throughout the county, who express regret at his leaving us. We congratulate Messrs. Richards & Co., upon receiving the services of such an efficient aid. Mr. Adams' family will remain in town until the first of April.

The village of Newton, in Sussex County, is getting nearer. The rapid development of business in the villages round about Newton, and the enterprise manifested by individuals in the more northern part of the county is leaving Newton out in the cold, and her citizens begin to shiver. They are waking up, however, to the importance of the fact that they cannot be "forever and eternally" grabbing at the almighty dollar and clinging thereto till death doth part them, preferring to spend their lives before they spend a cent. At a "shivering" of citizens held last Tuesday evening to see what could be done to increase the business prosperity of the place, it was thought that $25,000 would start a manufactory of agricultural implements, coal and freight cars, a repairing and foundry shop, &c. The removal of the county seat of Sussex is "whispered in the air," and we expect shortly to see one of the most bloodless fights on record between rival villages in that section.

Mr. E. A. Aygar, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, in conformity with the Library Act, has issued a circular stating that he has effected arrangements whereby fifty-two dollars' worth of books and a map will be furnished to each district that raises the twenty dollars, or if it is preferred fifty-six dollars worth of books without the map will be sent. The map is now and contains just the features of our state with which every child should be made familiar.

Full and simple directions are given for drawing the state, which with a little practice will enable every pupil to draw the map with all it contains from memory.

Mr. Canfield, Assemblyman from this district, has introduced a bill before the legislature to incorporate the Stanhope Railroad Company. The incorporators are George Richards, Isaac B. Jolley, Edmund Canfield, Wm. Allison and Wm. Jackson—with a capital stock of $30,000, in shares of $100 each. The road to extend from some point on Walkkill mountain within three miles of Lake Hopatcong to some point on that lake or to Stanhope.

A lecture on "How to choose a Matrimonial Companion," by Wm. Anderson, a Reporter on the N. Y. Herald, will be given in the Port Oram Hall, on Friday evening, March 1st. Proceeds for the benefit of the church. The lecture is spoken of in the highest terms by the Press, and we have no doubt but that the entertainment will be highly instructive as well as amusing.

A supplement to the Longwood Valley Railroad has been introduced in the legislature, giving power to extend their main line to Flemington in Hunterdon county and spur or branches to any iron mine in Hunterdon county, and the right to connect with any intersecting railroad, also power to exceed their capital stock to one million dollars.

We congratulate the Morristown Democrat in having recently settled successfully with a gentleman a small matter of nineteen years' subscription to that paper. No wonder the editor is getting rich when he is in receipt of such large sums these hard times.

The observance of Washington's birth-day in this place consisted in the closing of about one-half the stores, a display of bunting in several places, a high barometer and a low thermometer. Where's the Dover Cornet Band?

We learn that Mr. Samuel Schoch, tendered his resignation as Superintendent of the Morris and Essex Railroad a week since, but no action was taken upon it, a request being made for its withdrawal. Mr. Schoch, however, has renewed it, and insisted upon its acceptance. Mr. Schoch has been connected with this road for seventeen years in different responsible positions, was Assistant Superintendent three years and Superintendent three. He had under advisement an offer to take charge of a Southern road.

LOCAL OPTION MEETING IN ORANGE.—At a meeting of the Washington Temple of Honor at Orange, on Friday evening, 17th, addresses were made by George Shephard Page, and Major Klotz, reviewing the course of the Legislature in defeating the Camden Local Option bill last week. Mr. Page commented severely on the failure of Mr. Joy to vote, and upon the negative vote of Mr. Williams. Major Klotz criticized the course of Mr. Hendricks, and proceeded to arraign the Democratic party, with which he had sided ever since he first voted. They had unjustly undertaken to make this a purely local, moral and social question, a party measure, and with the exception of the noble Bourquin, of Camden, recorded themselves solidly against Camden's Democratic request, "Representation of the people, by the people, and for the people." He said "from this hour I leave the Democratic party. It bears the name, but the name only. Its actions belie it. It stands almost solidly in the paths of moral reform and human progress, and I leave the men who have soiled the fair name of Democracy. I call upon every Christian Democrat, every honest Democrat, every decent Democrat to come out and leave the unclean, polluted temple, once sacred to the cause of equal rights for all."

NOVET RESULT OF A STRIKE.—A strike recently took place among the stone-cutters at Westbury, Rhode Island, terminating rather differently from the usual ending of such proceedings. The rules of the Stone-cutters' Society provided that a limited number only of apprentices should be employed to every hundred workmen, and the employers disregarding this rule the men struck work. Instead, however, of waiting their time in idleness, they promptly formed a Co-operative Stone-Cutting Association, subscribed to its stock, elected officers, leased a quarry, and resumed work on their own account, and are reported to be doing a thriving business.

John J. McCarter died at Columbia, South Carolina, on the 17th inst. at the age of 71 years, and was buried at Charleston. He was born at Mendham, Morris county, N. J., December 14th, 1800. He was the son of John McCarter—"the old man of the mountain"—an able political writer of his time. Mr. McCarter went to Charleston in 1823, and engaged in the business of book seller and publisher, where he remained until 1863, when he removed to Columbia, and continued the business in partnership with his brother-in-law, Mr. H. L. Bryan. He was a member of the South Carolina Legislature in 1859 and 1860. Mr. McCarter was twice married. He married Miss—Southern ladies. He has been accustomed for years to spend considerable time at Newton during each summer, as his relatives nearly all live here. He left Newton only a few weeks since. He was a very courteous, social and intelligent old gentleman and his genial face and his agreeable companionship will be sorely missed, and his death sincerely mourned by his many friends in that community.

For the Era.

The Chronicles of Horem.

1. And it came to pass in the reign of Ulysses, when Joel was called to rule over the people of Jersey, there came a wise man from the East and dwelt in the land of Horem.

2. And the man brought also his wife with him.

3. And the man and his wife were possessed of much learning, inasmuch that the Horemites set them as instructors in the sanctuary of Horem, to instruct the children of the Horemites in the things they were want to know.

4. And it came to pass as the man and his wife did go into the sanctuary of learning the children did go in unto them to be instructed in the things they were want to know, the man in the west side and the woman in the east side.

5. And it came to pass as the woman was instructing the children of the Horemites, behold there was one Elijah, (a dull youth, and not much given to learning,) Now Elijah, (by reason of his dullness,) failed to understand the things the woman did expound unto him, and her wrath was kindled against Elijah.

6. And she straightway took a second rod and did severely chastise Elijah till he cried out by reason of the chastisement.

7. But Elijah was as "clay in the hands of the Potter," and stayed not her hand nor harkened unto his cries.

8. And again did the rod part asunder, but her anger was not assuaged and she straightway took the third rod and did again chastise Elijah till his flesh was grievously sore by reason of the chastisement.

9. And behold, the third rod did part asunder likewise. But the anger of the woman was not yet assuaged, though she chastised Elijah no more by reason of the failure of the rods.

10. And it came to pass that Elijah went down to the home of Susan his mother. And when Susan beheld her son she said, "Why is this thine? behold the blackness of thy flesh." And Elijah said the woman did it, even the woman in the sanctuary of learning.

11. And Susan's anger was kindled against the woman for this great wrong done unto her son, and she said unto him, "make ready and let us go into Horem and show thyself unto the officers of the seminary of learning."

12. Now John, and Aaron, and Josiah were the officers, and Susan the mother of her son did show him unto John, and Aaron, and likewise many of the Horemites.

13. Now John and Aaron were men not much given to words and said not much to Susan because of the severe chastisement of her son Elijah, not so much as to bring the woman before the law, (they being officers of the seminary,) for the great wrong that had been done Elijah.

14. And Susan and Elijah did go down from Horem to her home sorely bereaved by reason of the severe chastisement of Elijah her son.

15. And behold there was one Jacob, an officer of the law, and she showed Elijah unto him.

where we dwell, that they may understand the things we would have them to know.

18. And Jacob said unto her, "Our laws are not as your laws; neither are our ways as your ways; for thou mayest not chastise the children of the Horemites as thou didst in the East where thou didst dwell."

19. And Jacob said unto her, "Thou must make confession unto Elijah and Susan his mother for this great and grievous wrong that thou hast done to this lad Elijah, or thou mayest be dealt with according to the majesty of the law."

20. And it came to pass that the man and his wife made ready and did go down to the home of Elijah and Susan his mother, and did make confession unto them of the great wrong that had been inflicted upon Elijah by reason of his dullness to answer the things that were propounded unto him.

21. Therefore did not Jacob bring her to answer before the majesty of the law.

For the Era.

Mr. Editor: The meek, modest, patient, persecuted and long suffering victims of temperance fanaticism seem to have finally concluded that a point has been reached where forbearance ceases to be any longer a virtue, and have accordingly put forth a remonstrance remarkably for the clearness and truth of its statements, (with a dozen or two trifling exceptions,) and also for the earnestness and energy of its rhetoric. In this remarkable production a touching and pathetic appeal is made to the powers that be, to save them from their over vigilant and remorseless foe. It is difficult to conceive how any individual (unless he be a friend of humanity,) can withhold his deepest sympathy from these intelligent, but suffering and down trodden people. Who can have the heart to deny them their exceedingly reasonable and modest request to be let alone? Nobody that can be conceived of except a temperance fanatic. It is surprisingly strange (to gin heads) that these peace-loving (and peace-producing) people should be made the subjects of such continual molestation.

In whatever light this matter be viewed it is plainly evident (to the minds of the honest and upright dealers in pure and unadulterated benzine,) that the advocates of temperance reform are actuated only by the villainous intent of destroying the trade of these highly industrious but hapless and unfortunate people, in order (to quote the admirable language of their remonstrance,) "to gratify the fanatical ideas of a few." Can it be possible that the intelligent citizens of this "land of freedom" have become so degenerate, immoral and corrupt that they have lost all appreciation for, and interest in the preservation of a trade, the products of which are so essential, nay, indispensable to the welfare, prosperity and happiness of the human race? Such a lamentable state of affairs would seem to a mind properly tamed (with liquid stygian) impossible. What then shall we think of those fanatics who go still farther and manifest a desire to destroy this branch of productive industry? Should these fanatics succeed where on earth are we to go to get a supply of crime, ignorance, domestic misery, poverty, pauperism and such like pleasant, attractive and useful articles? What are we to do when deprived of our usual charming midnight entertainments in the form of brawls, fights, groans and other pleasant concomitants of inebriation? What are we to do for our usual daily appetizer, the columns of the daily paper, filled with accounts of wife-beating, neglected and starving children, assault and battery, riots, murders, and other equally delightful products of this branch of human skill? Does it not seem strange that men claiming to be intelligent and philanthropic, should entertain the dreadful intention of destroying a business which yields such important products?

But happily these poor, persecuted, innocent, bleeding (and blasted) lambs are enjoying a brief respite. A wise and beneficent legislature has spread its protecting coat tails over their heads, and warded off the storm of persecution by which they were being so mercilessly pelted. Warned, however, by the experience of the past, these good people who, when unmolested are so entirely and implicitly confiding and trustful, seem to have resolved to make the most of the unexpected turn in the tide of their affairs and not to relax their efforts to fortify themselves at all points. Their naturally unsuspecting disposition has become suspicious and it is plain that they have resolved to sleep with one eye open.

It is a deeply affecting spectacle to witness the affectionate tenderness and almost religious fidelity with which these people cling to the occupation to which they are so peculiarly adapted. No troubles discourage them; nothing daunts them. For "though troubles assail and dangers threaten, Of all soothing profits they never lose sight."

Now, have not reasons enough been given why the fanatics should leave these poor creatures alone? Why keep them constantly hopping about like live turkeys in a hot oven? First they are persecuted in one direction then in another. Now they may be seen, nervously huddled together, anxiously watching a cloud of indictments which looms dark and threatening over their heads. Next they are thrown into confusion and are hard making dolorous complaints and uttering dismal cries, the result of their fright at witnessing the appearance of their mortal enemy dressed in the garb of a "Local Option."

Then comes an evil apparition in the shape of a threatened state prohibitory law which throws them into an agonizing sweat, and yet they endure. Is it not remarkable? Indeed, is it not enough to induce the reformers to stop the wheel of progression and thereby relieve these poor creatures from their exceedingly comfortable condition?

MICHIGAN FLOUR.

AT WHOLESALE.

DIRECT FROM THE MILLS

IN MICHIGAN,

Different Grades at Different Prices.

Sold as Cheap as at the New York Wholesale Houses,

BY THE

Barrel or Car Load.

This flour is from the most celebrated mills in Michigan, is always kept on hand fresh ground, and the quality always is represented. The most superior brands as well as the lowest brands can be had.

I deal with the manufacturers at their Mills, and not with New York houses. The flour comes direct to my warehouse without going to New York, and is consequently had at first prices. Merchants and others throughout this section of country will find it to their advantage to deal with me, as I can assure them a better article of the above brand of flour, at less expense than they can procure it in New York.
